Six:—In view of the proportions assumed by the affidayit matter and in justice to myself and a truth-loving people, I deem an explanation necessary. The affidavit published over my signature in the INTELLIGENCER of December 1st was correct with the exception of a single remark. When Mr. Hart asked me if there might possibly have been more than two tickets scratched I told him there might have been others, but I did not remember seeing them. As the matter was fixed up in haste I do not remember seeing this remark in said statement, I merely made this remark to Robertson at Moundsville, and he communicated the same to the Register by telephone in my hearing, after which the editor asked him to have me sworn to it, which I did. A copy of this last affidavit is in Robertson's office. Whereals, The citizens of the Dominion of Canada are one with us in race, lineage, history and tradition; and whereas, the resources of the two countries supplement each other and the arteries of commerce, both natural and rartificial, are so interlocked and mutually dependent upon each other that they ought to constitute a single system, to be one and inseperably; and

Whereals, The commercial relations between the United States and the Dominion of Canada are, and have been, strained and unnaturally cramped, and, in a measure, paralyzed, owing to the inability of the two governments to establish such a system of international trade and commerce between them as is essential to meet the requirements of the situation; and

Whereals, The conditions and relations before referred to, as also the geography of the two countries suggest the unpopularity of a just and permanent settlement of the controversies pertaining to the fisheries, boundaries, and transcontinental trade, except by blending of effects, under one governmental system, and point logically to the necessity and probability of a unity and assimilation, between the two nations unsity and probability of a unity and as-similation between the two nations un-
